Property Description

Known for its world-class waves and breaks, Playa Negra is a surfer's paradise. Famous as the filming location for the cult classic, "Endless Summer II," this beach sits along the northwestern region of Guanacaste along the northern Pacific coast. Despite recent improvements to their infrastructure, Playa Negra has still not lost that charm of feeling you are in a very remote place. This small beach community has more to offer than just its surfing breaks. From great hotels to renowned cafes and local restaurants, Playa Negra has a little something to offer every visitor. This is the perfect place to enjoy the laid-back Tico lifestyle here while escaping the hustle of other surf-centric communities along the Pacific Coast. Those living here will also be just a short drive away from Marino Las Baulas National Park, which is a famous nesting ground for leatherback turtles. Casa Paraiso is a 2 bedroom, 2.
